On the 2nd December; at Eastbourne, Groke PETER BERMINGHAM, aged 10 years, second son of Edward L. O'Malley, Attorney-General, Hongkong.
On the 11th instant, suddenly, at Amoy, ROBERT

HINGEONG, JANUARY 16TH, 1886. THE need of a revised edition of the Ordin. ances of Hongkong has long been recognised, and the step taken by Mr. MARSH during his former administration in appointing a Commission for the purpose of preparing and reporting upon drafts for such an edition was a truly politic one. After having been in existence for several years the Commission is now beginning to present its work. At the meeting of the Legislative Council on Wednesday the Attorney-General explained the principles upon which the Commission has proceeded. The instructions were to prepare and report upon drafts for a revised edition of the Ordinances, and for amendments of the same, incorporating the results of such recent Imperial legislation as appears applicable to the circumstances of the colony. The Attorney General says :-- ' In the Chambers of Commerce of Hongkong, them the Commissioners have endeavoured to confine themselves very closely to the lines laid down in the Commission. They This issue contains the New Scale of Hong- do not at all recommend as final the Ordin ances in the shape in which they are now proposed. Here we join issue with the learned Attorney and the Commission. Their instructions were not only to prepare drafts but to report upon them. They have prepared a number of drafts, but they have given not a vestige of a report upon them. The Attorney-General says that "at the proper time we shall probably recommend some amendment." Whether the pronoun we refers to the Government or the Commission does not appear, but in either case there can be no doubt that with reference to the drafts then for a whole week, and to detain the acalready presented to the Council the proper time for stating what amendments it is intended to propose in the existing law has already passed. The procedure with reference to Bills in all legislative assemblies under the Subjects in China and Japan, 1865, 1877. British Constitution is well understood. By Rules of H.B.M. But by the course proposed by the Attorney-General the the autograph signature of members of the Legislative Council will be deprived of all the advantages of discussion label. Sold wholesale by the Geprivod of all the advantages of the Proprietors, Worcester; and and debate until they are called upon to consider the proposed measure in detail, and their vote on the second reading is deprived of all value, because they are in total ignorance of what the intentions of the posed of Senhores Marques d'Oliveira and Government are as to the final nature of the Act. Such a course is obviously not conducive o good legislation; the Council are, in effect, invited to take a series of leaps in comparative darkness when there is no earthly reason why they should not have the fullest light. With each draft presented by the Law Revision Committee embodying all the existing legislation on the subject of which the Bill treats there ought-to be a full report stating what portions of the existinglaw they recommend should be retained, what portions eliminated, and what amendments introduced, together with a statement of the reasons on which the recommendations are Otherwise our law revision is likely to prove a pitfall.

122 Among the cases reported in our Police Court intelligence will be found one of a somewhat unique character, a charge of larceny against a coolie being dismissed, and the constable who brought the charge being called upon to pay the coolie 50 cents amends. The case was heard before Mr. MITCHELL-INNES, who acted under the provisious of Sec. 32 of Ord 14 of 1845 in mulcting the constable. We do not remember to have seen a case of the Advertisements and Subscriptions which are not kind before. The Section provides many grounds for such a course, as a prosecution brought for the sake of gain, improper mobe sent before 11 a.m. on the day of publication. | tives, without proper ground, of a frivolous programme is divided into two parts, the first, to the insurgents in Kashgar, says:-"On character, &c. The ground stated by his consisting of songs and ballads, and the latter | the contrary, the Russian agents seek to allay Worship for his action was that the constable had brought a frivolous case. Had his Worship adopted the ground of improper motives it would have been easier to under-[172] stand_the_position_taken-up,-but-the ground stated seems to us somewhat incomprehen. sible. A frivolous charge one would usually understand to mean the act of charging some person with an offence of a frivolous nature, such as a petty case of assault, but to charge a man with going into your house and stealing of dialogue. As usual the noting had plenty of your coat is not a frivolous sort of charge to make against anyone. It may be brought upon totally inadequate and frivolous grounds, but that is entirely another matter. Supposing, however, this to be what his Wor. ship means by the term used, the decision is still, in our opinion, hardly consistent with the facts of the case. A great many cases are brought before the court necessarily only upon- suspicion, even where the gravest charges are involved; for instance, the recent stabbing case in Queen's road, where three men were in custody at one time on a charge of committing an offence it was perfectly certain only one man could be guilty of. In this case, according to the evidence, there as her dress, in one of her hands when she was certainly some ground for suspicion. A coat was missed from the complainant's residence directly after the prisoner had been seen near the door. The prisoner was in the babit of going there to get water, and clothing had been missed before. No one picked up shots of the Corps by P. C. Sutherland was seen near the premises anywhere 200, 400, and 500 yards, seven shots at each, reabout the time the coat was missed but gulation marking, and, as will be seen from the the prisoner. Under these circumstances there was undoubtedly ground for suspicion against the man, and though there was scarce. | tion last week. Sutherland's side won a close conly perhaps ground for a conviction it seems rather unfair that the constable who brought the charge should not only lose his coat. but have to pay 50 cents to the man he believed to have stolen it. It is true that if the prisoner was innocent it was a hardship that he should be detained in custody for eleven days over the case, but that was not the fault of the complainant. It is entirely the concern of the magistrate that the case was remanded, time after time as it .was, although no material evidence was adduced beyond that of the complainant, and it seems hardly consistent that his Worship should find a case to be so frivolous as to render it desirable to punish the complainant for bringing it when he had at tacked enough importance to the charge to remand the case, first for a day or two, and cused man in gaol all the time. Again, there is this fact to be taken into consideration. Every case a constable brings up goes being heard in the court. The Inspector on duty makes an inquiry into the case, and if he thinks it too frivolous or too ill-founded to send before the Police Court, he dismisses it summarily. The Inspector on duty ther investigation, and be let it go on for equally to blame with the constable who was spector who allowed it to pass through and been the best course to pursue, and that his course-for himself, has placed-a-strained

The People's Concert on Thursday evening was fully as great a success as any of its predecessors. The Temperance Hall was completely filled by an audience which testified satisfaction with every item that was produced. Mr. Swales made, as usual, a very efficient chairman, and besides presiding he sang a comic song before a preliminary sort of tribunal before -"I tell them my Father's a Marquis"-in a manner that called forth a hearty encore, when he gave with equal success "A Raspberry Tart in a little peke Bonnet." Mr. W. Scott's song "Good Boy," was also very amusingly rendered and there was another energetic encore, and cries for "How Paddy stele the rope," but instead of that old favourite he gave another song. My sang "The British Lion" in capital style, but quarter. being encored he tendered his acknowledgments of the honour, and intimated that he had not pest things on the programme was Mr. James Mason's exhibition of clog dancing. Notwithstanding the campaign which has been conducted against Haiphong for the last year we are persuaded that we will remain here. You see that the Hou-gae project is already abandoned, and that of Quang-yen will have a similar ending; a hundred millions (of francs) would be necessary to set up a suitable establishment there, and one would have to be contented to render definite the provisional state which has lasted at Haiphong too long? We cannot therefore too strongly impress upon the Administration to at length decide on filling in where required and the making of streets. wharves, etc. It is useless to wait for the formation of a municipality before commencing these works, as the organisation of the municipality would occupy more than a year. Time presses, and we are now at a suitable season-of-the year of which it is desirable to take advantage to proceed with the most urgent works: otherwise, if the administration does not ac cede to our request, we consider that it will incur a very heavy responsibility should an opidemic break out with the return of the hot weather.
